PORTO

A vibrant and historic tourism destination, Porto is a modern city and at the same time elegant, full of its own contents and rich in traditions with an atmosphere between the past and the present. The capital of the north of the country is one of the oldest cities in Europe and its historic center has been declared a UNESCO heritage site. The city is also bounded by the river Douro, the original cradle of the famous Port wine, where it has been produced for over two thousand years. The Douro region is considered the oldest in the world and a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Mountains, rivers, traditions, faith, culture ...
The area that runs along the Douro River is all this and much more. Porto offers many memorable places to discover or it can be the starting point for a journey in search of the cultural diversity of the region.

CENTRE

The heart of Portugal

In the interior of the country, there are mountains and villages of granite and schist. At the seaside there are fishing villages and cosmopolitan beaches with water sports, that gives the rhythm for the day. And everywhere the legacy of the centuries proudly presents the history of the region. Some of these places are so important to humanity that they have been classified World Heritage by UNESCO. This is the example of the Monasteries of Alcobaça and Batalha, the Convent of Christ in Tomar and the University of Coimbra. But there are other features that are well worth discovering. For example, the historic villages and castles that defended the borders of the nation. The Villages of Schist and the villages with white houses, like Óbidos, a treasure inside walls. The crystal clear waters of thermal springs balance body and soul. And the beaches! River beaches surrounded by forests and open coastal beaches for the Atlantic Ocean, which offers some coolness in the hot summer days. There are also well-known spots for surfers from all over the world, that arrive for the perfect wave in Peniche, and even the giant waves in Nazaré.

ALENTEJO

The Plains of Portugal

Alentejo is a region that occupies more than a third of Portugal's surface area, despite being home to just seven per cent of the population. This is the vast plain south of Lisbon which literally means "beyond the Tagus". The Tejo, in fact, is the river that marks the northern border of the area, while to the south we find the hills of the Algarve, to the east is Spain and, to the west, the Atlantic Ocean. The huge Alentejo plain is dotted with picturesque castle towns and quiet, hilltop villages, olive groves, sunflowers and fields of cork oaks, being the world's most important cork producer region. The Alentejo is a place of tranquility and well known for its rural and ecological tourism characterized by rural architecture, picturesque vineyards and whitewashed houses. Here you can find churches, temples, cathedrals, monasteries, influences of Romans, Moors and Jews. In fact, there are many routes in Alentejo ranging from the megalithic to the Roman period, from the Arab and Jewish tradition and from the traditional gastronomy to the religious and monastic heritage. This province is a mixture of well-preserved popular culture with monumental traces of great quality. This province It is an ideal holiday spot for those looking for heat, relaxation and culture.

ALGARVE

Pleasant, mild, exceptional: moderate in winter, hot in summer. This is the weather in Algarve. This is the main attraction for many visitors. The region is just a two-hour drive from Lisbon and Seville, and many European cities offer direct flights to Faro Airport, meaning travelling to the Algarve is simple. Visitors can explore and learn about rural traditions, architecture, fishing, mountain cuisine, prestigious wines, terraces overlooking the sea, stunning landscapes and friendly local people.

Portugal has developed as a tourism destination becoming a paradise for golfers from all over Europe, hosting numerous golf championships and major competitions. Seaside stays in the Algarve are much appreciated. Those arriving by boat will find four marinas with modern infrastructure that can accommodate boats of all sizes. Sail along the Algarve coast on beautiful sailing boats for an unforgettable day at sea. On this trip you can enjoy the ocean in the front row.

MADEIRA

The Pearl of the Atlantic

Blue. Bloomed. Tropical.

In the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, the islands of Madeira and Porto Santo are an oasis of natural beauty.

The exotic colors of the flowers stand out from the blue sea and the emerald green vegetation. It is an archipelago where two thirds are a protected area and where we can find the largest Laurisilva forest in the world, also a World Heritage Site. The spring temperature, felt all year round, requires outdoor activities. Madeira is the best known Atlantic island, due to the fact that the European aristocracy has adopted it as a resting place for over a century.
